

The Role of the Asian Community in the Political Development of Kenya. ...

Bibliography of the South Asian Diaspora and East Africa: an annotated bibliography by Andrew Mickleburgh mickleburgh@gyosei.ac.uk

Alumni of the GIHS & Duke of Gloucester School ( Ghai & Gundara)

Ghai, D.P. (1963). Review of G. Delf, Asians in East Africa. Uganda Journal, 27 (2), 241-242

Ghai, D.P. (1965). Economic Survey. In D.P. Ghai & Y.P. Ghai (Eds.), Portrait of a Minority (pp. 91-112). Nairobi: Oxford University Press.

Ghai, D.P. (1970). The Buganda Trade Boycott: A Study in Tribal, Political and Economic Development. In R. Rotberg & A. Mazrui (Eds.), Protest and Power in Black Africa (pp. 755-770). New York: Oxford University Press.

Ghai, Y. P. (1965a). The Asian Dilemma in East Africa. East African Journal, March, 6-21

Ghai, Y. P. (1965b). The Future Prospects. In D.P. Ghai & Y.P. Ghai (Eds.), Portrait of a Minority (pp. 129-152). Nairobi: Oxford University Press.

Ghai, Y.P. (1966). Prospects for Asians in East Africa. In P. Fordham (Ed.), Racial and Communal Tensions in East Africa (pp. 9-26). East African Institute of Social and Cultural Affairs, Contemporary African Monographs Series No.3. Nairobi: East Africa Publishing House.

Ghai, Y.P. (1975). Amin and the Asians. Times Literary Supplement, 4th July, 738-739

Ghai, D.P. & Ghai, Y.P. Eds. (1965a). Portrait of a Minority: Asians in East Africa, Nairobi: Oxford University Press.
Socio-economic and political surveys of Asian populations in East Africa, set against the historical background of Asian settlement.

Ghai, D.P. & Ghai, Y.P. (1965b). Asians in East Africa: Problems and Prospects. Journal of Modern African Studies, 3 (1), 35-51

Ghai, D.P. & Ghai, Y.P. (1969). Asians in Tanzania: Problems and Prospects. In K.E. Svendsen & M. Teisen (Eds.), Self-reliant Tanzania (pp. 91-110). Dar es Salaam: Tanzania Publishing House. Pages 205-208 of this book reprint an article by J. K. Nyerere titled "Socialism is not Racialism", first published in the Nationalist, 14th February 1967.

Ghai, D.P. & Ghai, Y.P. (1971). Asians in East Africa: Problems and Prospects. In A. Gupta (Ed.), Indians Abroad: Asia and Africa (pp 191-210). New Delhi: Orient Longman.

Ghai, Y. P. & Ghai, D.P. (1971). The Asian Minorities of East and Central Africa, London, Minority Rights Group, Report 4.

Gundara, J.S. (1980). Aspects of Indian Culture in Nineteenth Century Zanzibar. South Asia, 3 (1), 14-27

Gundara, J.S. (1982). Fragment of Indian Society in Zanzibar: Conflict and Change in the 19th Century. Africa Quarterly, 21 (2), 23-40

Gundara, J.S. (1984). British Extraterritorial Jurisdiction in Nineteenth Century Zanzibar. Africa Quarterly, 23 (3-4), 10-27

Gundara, J.S. (1993). British Extraterritorial Jurisdiction, Imperial Enterprise and Indians in Nineteenth Century Zanzibar. In M. Israel & N. K. Wagle (Eds.), Ethnicity, Identity, Migration: The South Asian Context (pp. 291-319). Toronto: University of Toronto, South Asian Studies Papers No.6, Centre for South Asian Studies.

Ghose, S.K. (1971). Memoirs of a Visit to East Africa in the 1950s. Africa Quarterly, 10 (4), 329-339

Discusses political, social and economic conditions of the time. References to many prominent East African Asians.

Harris, J.E. (1972). Africans in Indian History. Paper presented at the University of Nairobi Department of History Staff Seminar, 4 October 1972.

Discusses Habshis and Siddis whose ancestors came to India from Africa as slaves merchants and later achieved economic, political and military influence in Indian history far in excess of their numbers. Includes discussion of Malik Ambar, an Ethiopian who ruled the area of Ahmadnagar in Deccan from 1602-1626

Hardy, R. (1965). The Iron Snake, London: Collins. Background to and building of the Uganda Railway.

Grewal, N.S. (1964). The Place of the Settler Community of Indian Origin in the Plural Society of Tanganyika Under British Administration, 1919 - 1960, Delhi, Department of African Studies, University of Delhi.

Grewal, N.S. (1966). India and Tanzania. Africa Quarterly, 6 (1), 18-28

Pre-colonial trade, early Indian settlement, Indians under German rule, the proposal for Indian colonization of Tanganyika, British rule including the role of the British Government of India.

Grewal, N.S. (1967). Pioneers in East Africa: A Study of Asians in East Africa. Journal of African and Asian Studies, 1(1), 66-89

Grewal, N.S. (1973). Indians in Tanganyika Part I - The Decade of Discontentment - 1923-32. Journal of African and Asian Studies, 4 (1), 1-22

Pant, A.B. (1987). Undiplomatic Incidents. Hyderabad: Sangam Books. Chapter 1 includes reminiscences of Pant's diplomatic career in East Africa, including recollections of meetings with Kenyatta, Koinange, Kabaka Frederick Mutesa and European political figures. Pant describes Pio Pinto Gama as "largely responsible for having prevented the wrath of the Mau Mau from being vented on the Indian community

Malik, M.H. (1921). Indians in East Africa. The Hindustan Review, 44, 32-37

Mangat, J.A. (1970). The India Office and East Africa 1889 to 1903. Hadith, 2, 202-211

Assesses the varied roles played by the India Office, London, in East African affairs during the early colonial period. Identifies some of the rich material available in India Office records relating to East Africa.

Maini, P.L. (1944). The Indian Problem in Kenya. M.Sc. dissertation, University of London.

A general overview of issues affecting the Indian population in Kenya from the late nineteenth century to the early 1940s. Includes references to restrictions on access to land and political participation. A section on Indian education services includes a number of useful tables and other statistics not easily accessible elsewhere. Suggests that preferential treatment given to Europeans confined Indians mainly to a middleman role that prevented them from participating fully in the development of Kenya

Ismail, A.H. (1946). Some problems of Indian Education in Kenya. Forward, July, 8-11

Iyer, V. (1974). Apa Pant - The First Indian Envoy. Nairobi: University of Nairobi Department of History Seminar Papers 1973/74

Heyer, S. S. (1961). The Asians in Kenya. Africa South, 5 (2), 77-84
Asian political participation, including political conflicts with Europeans.

Hill, M. (1944). The Dual Policy in Kenya. Nakuru: Kenya Weekly News. A collection of articles published in the Kenya Weekly News between July 1943 and March 1944 on the present and future of the Kenya Colony.

Himbara, D. (1994). Kenyan Capitalists, the State and Development, Boulder, Colorado: Lynne Rienner.

Argues, based on a sample of 100 companies that are members of the Kenya Association of Manufacturers, that the contribution made to Kenya's economy by Kenyan Asians, which Himbara attributes to characteristics of Asian 'culture', has been under-estimated.

Himbara, D. (1997). The 'Asian Question' in East Africa: The Continuing Controversy on the Role of Indian Capitalists in Accumulation and Development in Kenya, Uganda and Tanzania. African Studies, 56 (1), 1-18

Traces the relationship between states in East Africa and Asian capitalists from 1940. Argues that Asian economic activity has been flourishing again since market liberalization policies gathered momentum in the 1990s.

Huxley, E. & Perham, M. (1944). Race and Politics in Kenya. London: Faber and Faber.

Correspondence between the authors containing numerous references to Indians, including Indians' relations with settlers and Africans.

Huxley, E. & Perham, M. (1944). Race and Politics in Kenya. London: Faber and Faber.
Correspondence between the authors containing numerous references to Indians, including Indians' relations with settlers and Africans.

Imperial Indian Citizenship Association (1923). Indian Abroad Bulletin, No. 4 - Kenya. Bombay.

Imperial Indian Citizenship Association (1946). Indian Abroad Bulletin, No. 24 - East Africa. Bombay.

Indians Overseas Association (c. 1921). Indians in East Africa: Is the Segregation Policy to Prevail? Views of the Government of India. London.

Indians Overseas Association (c.1923). How India Looks at Kenya. London.

Indians Overseas Association (c. 1923). The Real Kenya Question: A Few Facts. London.

Jhaveri, K.L. (1999). Marching With Nyerere: Africanisation of Asians. Delhi: B.R. Publishing Corporation.
Written by a long-serving Member of the Legislative Council and Parliament, and former President of the Tanganyika Law Society. A chronologically organized discussion of the role of Asians in the post- World War Two period in the Independence struggle in Tanganyika. Focuses particularly on the part played by the Asian Association in conjunction with the Tanganyika Africa National Union (TANU) led by J. K. Nyerere.

Johnston, H.H. (1889). The Asiatic Colonization of East Africa. Journal of the Royal Society of Arts, 37 (1), 161-173
Text of a speech by the author to the Society of Arts, followed by wide ranging discussion. Begins by hypothesizing that humankind's origins were in Asia and that Africa was first settled by migrants from Asia who carried with them many of the plants and domesticated animals found there today. Trade with the Gulf States and early Arab settlements on the East African coast. About half of the paper describes the different Indian communities living in Zanzibar, with extended comments on the Ismaili Khoja's. References to Indian involvement in inland trade, slavery, and inter-marriage between Indian men and Arab women. Argues that Indians should be encourage to settle in East Africa and to practice agriculture.

Kenya Colony and Protectorate (n.d.). Asian Staff Seniority List. Nairobi: Government Printer.

Kenya Colony and Protectorate. (1948). Commission on Educational Expenditure (European and Asian). Nairobi: Government Printer.

Kenya Colony and Protectorate. (1948). Select Committee on Indian Education. Nairobi: Government Printer.
A review of A.A. Kazimi (1948), An Inquiry into Indian Education in East Africa.

Kenya Colony and Protectorate. (1959). Consideration of the Recommendations of a Report on Asian and European Education in Kenya. Legislative Council Sessional Paper No. 4 1958/59. Nairobi: Government Printer.

Lal, K. (Ed.) (1984). Trial of Balwant Rai and Others. Leicester: Taleaga Ltd.

Deals with the murder of Isher Dass on November 6th 1942 in his office in the Desai Memorial Hall, Nairobi, and the trial and execution of two of the three persons subsequently accused. Biographical details of Dass, including background to the animosity felt by some Asians towards him. Includes the trial proceedings in toto.

Manji, M. (1995). Madatally Manji: Memoirs of a Biscuit Baron. Nairobi: Kenway Publications.

Marret, P. (1988). Meghi Pethraj Shah: His Life and Achievements. Bombay: Bharatiya Vidya Bhavan.
Based on the original biography in Gujarati by T. Mehta.

Matson, A.T. (1966). Sewa Haji: A Note. Tanganyika Notes and Records, 65, 91-93

Ismaili trader, financier, caravan owner and philanthropist in the late nineteenth century, whose coastal interests were centred on Bagomayo with inland agents as far afield as Mwanza and Kampala. Angered British, Zanzibar and IBEA officials by helping Emin Pasha charter a steamer for his expedition and for assisting the Sultan of Zanzibar to pursue uncooperative policies towards his British advisors. Suggests that Allidina Visram was able to build his empire in the Uganda Protectorate on the foundation laid by Sewa Haji.

Mattausch, J. (1998). From Subjects to Citizens: British 'East African Asians'. Journal of Ethnic and Migration Studies, 24 (1), 121-141
Traces the history of East African Asians over a period of four centuries in Gujarat, Africa and Britain. Argues that a mercantilist ideology has enabled East African Asians to prosper in Britain where they are no longer political subjects but, for the first time, are able to live their lives as full and successful citizens. Suggests that this transition from subjects to citizens may have disruptive repercussions upon their culture.

Mayor, R.K. (1985). Memoirs of Ram Karan Mayor. Hounslow West U.K.: privately printed.

Author came to Kenya in the 1920's and wrote these memoirs after retiring to Britain. Includes information about personalities and Arya Samaj.

Oza, U.K. (c.1931). The Rift in the Empire's Lute, A History of the Indian Struggle in Kenya from 1900 to 1930. Bombay: Advocate India Press.

A booklet written by an Indian living in Kenya, recording the history of the Indian struggle in Kenya during the early twentieth century.

Preston, R. (1938). Oriental Nairobi, Nairobi: Nairobi Colonial Printing Works.
Compiled by an Anglo-Indian who was Chief Engineer on the Uganda

Railway from 1897 to 1903. The articles, which were mainly contributed by the various Asian communities themselves, give an interesting view of Asian life in Nairobi in the mid-1930s.

Rice, S. (1923). The Indian Question in Kenya. Foreign Affairs, 2 (2), 258-269

Salvadori, C. (1996). We Came in Dhows (3 vols.), Nairobi: Paperchase Kenya Ltd.

Salvadori, C. (Ed.) with J. Aldrick. (1997). Two Indian Travellers: East Africa 1902-1905, Being Accounts of Journeys Made by Adamji, A Very Young Bohra merchant From Mombasa and Sorabji M. Darookhanawala, A Middle-Aged Parsi Engineer From Zanzibar. Mombasa: Friends of Fort Jesus.

Seidenberg, D. (1973). The Asians and Uhuru: The Role of a Minority Community in Kenya Politics, 1939-1963. Ph.D. thesis, Syracuse University.

Seidenberg, D. (1983). Uhuru and the Kenyan Asians: The Role of a Minority Community in Kenyan Politics, 1939-63. New Delhi: Vikas Publishing House PVT LTD.

Sheriff, A.M. (1971). The Rise of a Commercial Empire: An Aspect of the Economic History of Zanzibar, 1770-1873. Ph.D. thesis, University of London.

Argues that the beginnings of Zanzibar as an entrepot pre-dated Seyyid Said's first visit to the island. Discusses the role of the slave and ivory trade in the growth of Zanzibar, including the part played by Indians from the early nineteenth century. The declining fortunes of Zanzibar from the mid-nineteenth century and British efforts to stop the slave trade in East Africa.

Singh, C. (1971). Manilal Ambalal Desai. In K. King & A. Salim (Eds.), Kenya Historical Biographies (pp. 128-141). Nairobi: East Africa Publishing House.

Singh, M. (1971). The East African Association, 1921-1925. Hadith, 3, 121-141

Includes discussion of Indian cooperation with Africans in Kenya during the early 1920s campaign for rights.

Singh, M. (1972). The East African Trade Union Congress, 1949-50: The First Central Organization of Trade Unions in Kenya. In B.A. Ogot (Ed.), Politics and Nationalism in Colonial Kenya (pp.233-249). Nairobi: East African Publishing House.

Singh, N. (Ed.). (1963a). Kenya Independence Day Souvenir: A Spotlight on the Asians of Kenya, Nairobi: Kenya Indian Congress. Place of Asians in Kenyan society, history and economy. Includes a list of Presidents of the Kenya Indian Congress.

Thurston, A. (1979a). The Formation of a Character - An Interview With Joseph Murumbi. Kenya Past and Present, 10, 17-21. Former Vice-president of Kenya. Includes description of his Goan heritage.

Thurston, A. (1979b). Emergence of a Nationalist - An Interview With Joseph Murumbi, Part II. Kenya Past and Present, 11, 23-28

Thurston, A. (1980). Independence - An Interview With Joseph Murumbi Part III. Kenya Past and Present, 12, 28-33

Udani, R.J. (1928). Our Countrymen in Kenya. Indian Review, 29, 841-846

Vasey, E.A. (1956). Economic and Political Trends in Kenya. African Affairs, 55 (219), 101-108

Written by a former Minister for Finance and Development in Kenya. Includes references to the economic and political position of Asians.

Zarwan, J.I. (1976a). Indian Businessmen in Kenya During the Twentieth Century. Ph.D. thesis, Yale University.

Focuses on two family groups in the Halari Visa Oshwal community and the relationship between social networks, particularly those of caste and kin, and economic activities. The two families chosen were in the middle range of the Indian population in terms of income, size of business and education. One family had always been based in Mombasa. The second family first settled in Nairobi and Kisumu and later moved to Mombasa when their business expanded. Provides insights into the structure of Asian businesses in Kenya including the costs of doing business, ownership of assets, and sources of credit and business information. appendices contain some detailed tables relating to the Oshwal community, Asian immigration and emigration, and Asian employment and commerce.

Zarwan, J.I. (1976b). Social Evolution of the Jains in Kenya. Hadith, 6, 134-144

Zarwan, J.I. (1977). Kinship, Community and Business: A Study of Indians in Kenya. Paper presented at the Joint Annual Meeting of the African Studies Association and Latin American Studies Association, Houston.